

Coalitionally stable networks

László Á. Kóczy

HAS

Abstract

We introduce a model for coalitional network stability in networks with widespread externalities. We present a simple example of a favour network and show that the core is nonempty when players must pay transfers to intermediaries. This simple setting also models economic situations such as airline networks.